Not saying the F& T does not sound beautiful, it does. More frequency response and tighter. Its burned in now and sounds good. But If I knew what the difference between the Marcon (Toshiba / Unitec Chemcon) would be on the verge of a tone secret. Something was going on with the Marcon that made it sound so so good.

Thanks for all the advice. Must admit the more I read forums, the more I am confused. People seem to attribute magical properties to some caps I think replacing the 43 year old electrolytics with Alcap LL from Falcon is a no brainer, just wondered how they would compare to Mundorf E caps. Since Brexit buying from the UK (Falcon Acoustics) has become more ...

Using a general-purpose capacitor in a circuit that needs a high ripple, low-impedance capacitor is a prime example of where things can go bad quickly. A good cap in a circuit with good design margins should last years without issues, as the design will accept some degradation of the capacitor over time before failing.
