By using a LiFePO4 battery charger, you can be assured that your battery is being charged in a way that is safe, efficient and extends the battery life. One of the key benefits of using a LiFePO4 battery charger is that it provides a balanced charging process that ensures each individual cell within the battery pack is charged to the correct level.

Battery balancing involves redistributing charge around battery cells so that they have similar SOC. What's the danger in allowing one cell to have a dominant SOC in a battery pack? There are several reasons to manage this through charge redistribution:
